ASFL GOES CORPORATE IN THIRD SEASON

SUNNY DAY CHUCK DOWNFIELD

Pumpkin-flavored drinks are back at Starbucks™ (full disclosure: Starbucks™ is NOT a sponsor of ASS Page), and that can only mean one thing: it's time for ASFL football. With the Labor Day holiday behind us, it's your court-ordered deadline to put away those Lawn Darts™ and set your TV to Tubi™ to stream all the latest action (Lawn Darts™ is NOT a sponsor of ASS Page, but Tubi™ definitely is). Just two days ago, twelve managers drafted their players and assembled their teams for the third season of A Serious Football League. The offseason was dominated by rumors that Commissioner Tribble rigged last season's championship for his own team. Those rumors haven't been put to rest just yet, but you could put yourself to rest with a nice new mattress from Serta™ (Serta™ approached ASS Page with an insultingly low offer for a sponsorship, which was rejected, but this line was included to show them what they could have had).

FOOTBALL GOES FANTASY

Much like the Punk Goes Pop album series (fun fact, there were SEVEN volumes), this year's ASFL marketing team is trying to combine two seemingly disparate things in an effort to attract a wider audience. The new "Football Goes Fantasy" initiative will create a sporting experience unlike any other major American sports league in history. Don't be surprised to find a few fantastical creatures staffing some brand new ASFL stadiums this year. Fans can expect everything from ogres selling concessions to ghosts and cryptids patrolling the sidelines. "We hope that 'Football Goes Fantasy' will encourage players, coaches, and fans alike to get weird with it and just have fun!" said Commissioner Tribble.

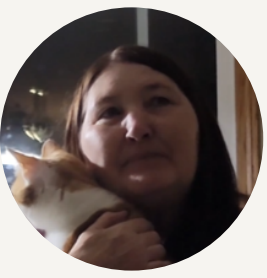

Remember the recurring joke about the graphic designer who created this logo being taken out back to be shot? It was all fake, he's fine. His name is Nathan and he's the September ASFL Employee of the Month! Let's hear it for Nathan!

Meet the Managers

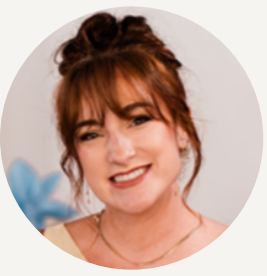

Dawn Burney (9-18 all time)

Manager Dawn Burney has grown tired of graciously watching her friends succeed while she fails. “This year,” she says, “as Nina Simone sang, it’s a new day, it’s A New Dawn, it’s a new life for me... and I’m feelin’ good.”

Beth Tribble (12-15 all time)

Max the Manx enters the season as the most balanced roster in the league, with extra backups at every position. “When half the players in the league are injured, we’ll see who’s laughing at my draft strategy,” said Beth on a Discord call.

Melanie Shayer (14-13 all time)

It wasn’t exactly first-to-worst, but the 2024 champion manager had a rougher time in the 2025 season. This year, Lady Melanie Shayer has been entrusted to command Her Majesty’s Royal Army, surely a force to be reckoned with.

Aaron DeSantiago (6-8 all time)

One of two new managers last year, this time around Aaron’s squad is called the Down Under Influencers. These guys are said to be content creators first and football players second, but who knows what they’ll do to get the perfect clip?

Kaitlyn Hucke (13-14 all time)

After a disappointing season with first round pick Josh Allen last year, The Girly Pops are trying something different this year by drafting Josh Allen in the second round. “We’re also trying other new things, like lots of lip filler,” said Kaitlyn.

Kris Burney (12-15 all time)

Lawrence Barnett, Jr. joins the ownership team of Kris’s franchise this season, and he’s already renamed the team Lawn Darts™. “I’ll see Mr. Tribble in hell for what he did to my family,” said Barnett at a press conference.

Mallory DeSantiago (6-8 all time)

Mallory has spent her life betting on men with magnificent mustaches-- namely, her husband Aaron and her QB Jalen Hurts. Hurts and the rest of the Power Pwincesses 👸 have their sights set on a deep playoff run this year.

Matt Tribble (14-13 all time)

Team Ashton Djenty is joined by new co-manager Tosin Abasi, who started his press conference with, “We are Animals, just as we are Leaders... and we are here to chug.” The assembled reporters looked at each other quizzically.

Coren Hucke (15-12 all time)

The Fellowship of the Football was chosen at the Second Council of Elrond in Ankeny, Iowa. These players were charged with an errand of most importance: simply walk into Mordor, and return with the Serious Cup.

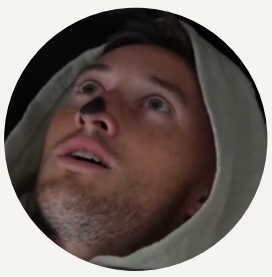

Alan Tribble (16-11 all time)

If it ain’t broke, don’t fix it. Alan is running it back with Jasmine’s Fav this year. “I plan to keep doing what I’ve been doing, and somehow I’ll coast to third place for the third time,” Alan predicted. No one can say he’s wrong.

Sam Shayer (15-12 all time)

The “Football Goes Fantasy” initiative has Sam, a historian of Medieval Europe, concerned about this season. “All these lords and ladies and majesties... it’s going to get messy,” he said. His Buzzin’ Buzzers hope to avoid that silliness.

Daniel Tribble (17-10 all time)

After definitely not rigging it last year, Daniel is ready to prove to the league that his new team <REDACTED> is capable of being repeat champs. “I like being doubted,” he said convincingly, “because then I can stick it to the haters.”

Featured Matchup: Fellowship of the Football @ The Girly Pops

The honeymoon was good while it lasted! Wedded bliss for Coren and Kaitlyn Hucke lasted less than three months before the Week 1 battle between their teams, the Fellowship of the Football and The Girly Pops. “I think he’s a great husband, but I just feel like he’s always doubted my ability to be a serious ASFL manager,” Kaitlyn admitted recently, “even though I’ve made it to the championship game and he hasn’t.” When ASFL reporters asked Coren if winning this week would get him sent to “the doghouse,” he claimed he had no knowledge of such a thing.
